MORE SAVINGS BANK TROUBLES.

Another Run on the Third Avenue Bank-What | Mouthly Statement of the Treasury Departmentthe Officers Say-A Clamorous Crowd After Their Deposits.

It appears that the Third Avenue Savings Bank, nousand dollars deposits, is not yet "out of the viderness" of its financial troubles. In a morning saper of yesterday appeared a rehash of several olumns of its affairs and examinations, made revious to the October run, and the result was hat as soon as the doors were opened yesterday forning a heavy run was inaugurated, which inreased to proportions until the nour for closing. During the day all were paid who demanded their oney, and the interest as well. The President, Mr. Lyons, and William F. Darling, one of the trustees, were very indignant at the publication, the latter declaring that he could not aderstand the animus of the journal, as the bank was never in a sounder condition or better prepared to meet all its obligations. Speaking of Messrs. ounn. Dooley and John Murphy, late officers of the tution, he characterized the run as their work, and declared they were prompted by malignant otives and a desire to ruin the institution. Mr. Darling stated that while the deposits are only about $5,077,000, they have about $10,000,000 sets, nearly all of which is convertible at a ort notice, and that when the run of yesterday menced there was $1,050,000 in the bank's cofers and an abundance of call loans not disturbed. hen the last run occurred they met every call and were now as sound as ever, and could get all the sid they required from other banks. The run, he said they required from other banks. The run, he said, was not unexpected, as it is a usual thing for $100,000 or $200,000 to be drawn out on the let of January, when the accrued interest is paid, and about $70,000 is paid in as accrued interest is paid, and about $70,000 is paid in as accrued interest on bonds and mortgages. Mr. Darling was very indignant at the supposed influence used to be above-hauned disappointed men to cripple the institution, and declared it was wifful, personal space towards some of the directors that instigated the publication. President Lyons asserted that those men were personally hostine to trustees Green, Darling and increasing, and he would say that many of the statements made were taise.

In October last the officers claim they made a statement to Superintendent thoweil, of the Bank Department, showing a surplus of about eighty thousand dollars. Mr. Howell came down from the capital after the run, made a thorough examination of the concern, and declared that he did not see but the bonk was sound and all right; that he did not propose to go back two years and examine into the past management; that he was satisfied that the frustees had carefully guarded the interests of the depositors, and as the bank had stood the brunt of battle for so many years he felt a pride in sustaining th.

The trustees also report that since the last run ere now as sound as ever, and could get all the depositors, and as the bank had stood the brunt of battle for so many years he felt a pride in sustaining it.

The trustees also report that since the last run shey have received about a quarter of a million of deposits, and since the first run in April, 1863, they have received about a quarter of a million of deposits, and since the first run in April, 1863, they have paid to depositors over a million dollars in interest. They claim to have the sympathy and support of the other banks, upon which they do not expect to be compelled to call, as they have on hand about $550,000 in government securities, that can also be converted into cash to meet any emergency such as now stares them in the face, and the great balk of the rest of the $10,000,000 assets consists of New York and Brooklyn and State stocks, upon which, they say, they can quickly realize feady cash. Then they have considerable in bond and mortgage that can also be converted.

When asked if there was any immediate danger of not being able to withstand a prolonged run one of the trustees replied, "Not if the newspapers help has. With over a million in our confers and two million immediately convertible we feel sanguine of our ability to weather the storm. Sail these runs anjure a bank's reputation, and when the last one ended this clique boasted that our troubles were not over; that on the lat of January we should have another tussle, and it has come." Another of the frustees charged that some of the enemies of the institution had gone about among the memoers of an inducatual religious sect, of which most of their defiliculties.

Yesterday morning Rev. Father Marcon, pastor of snaky. To this he attributes much of their difficulties.

Yesterday morning Rev. Father Marcon, pastor of the Roman Catholic church of Long Island City, hame over and deposited $2,800 of the church fand in the bank, but at the urgent request of the trustees fater in the day he withdrew it.

While the trustees were very emphatic in their assertions that they would withstand the danger finat targetinged to carry down the institution their faces betrayed great anxiety for the future.

The above is derived from information furnished by them, and in the absence of an official statement of assets and liabilities it would be improper to express an opinion as to the solvency of the corporation. It is probable that this run will be greater than the last, as that in October occurred at a time when, under the rules, the bank was not held for the interest, and many, not wishing to lose their interest, run the risk of its collapse. As depositors are now entitled to interest as well as principal they will be more anxious to withdraw their saviags and acposit elsewhere.

The Stuyvesant Back Failure. meeting of the depositors of the Stuyvesant Bank was held last evening in the Sinclair House, ax-Judge Keily in the chair. The committee on inquiry into the financial state of the bank reported that the receiver had collected $93,388 76 since his appointment, and had disbursed $60,966 62, leaving a balance still in his hands of $8,692,58.

The Financial Condition of the State-Gover-Both Houses to Repeal the Funding Bill-The Legislature Will Ignore the Veto-The January Interest on Bonds Not to be Paid

RICHMOND, Jan. 2, 1872. The Governor's expected Message vetoing the late resolution of the Legislature suspending the unding of the State debt was sent into the House of Delegates to-day. No quorum was present in the entire body; but there is no doubt that the resolution will be passed over the veto by much more than a two-thirds vote in the House and an easy two-tnirds vote in the Senate.

The Message is regarded as an able state paper in the city, but it will probably impair the Governor's popularity in the Legislature.

Members have come back after the recess declar Members have come back after the recess declaring that the people will sustain them in opposing the Funding bill, and in postponing the payment of microst on the public deot. The Message argues that the Funding bill was proved as consolidating a debt created by more than a handred different statutes, and simplying the form of the State bonds. More than a two-thirds of the debt is already funded, and to stop the process now would be placing the holders of the other third on unequal terms with the holders of the funded bonds. The resolution leaves the whole business in doubt and uncertainty, and manifestly means the indefinite postponement of the payment of the public debt. The resolution expresses no purpose of the Legislature to preserve the faith of the state or to protect the public credit; nor does it express any clearly defined purpose of any kind or character.

The bonds already issued under the Funding act constitute a contract between their holders and the state under which the interest coupons may be paid for all debts, claims and demands of the state. This contract is protected by the national constitution and by the State constitution, but the holders of the old bonds not yet funded enjoy mo such benefit, and are dependent on the will of the Legislature for the interest due them.

That the resolution was unwase is shown by the effect it has already produced in depressing the price of Virginia bonds. For the first time in the history of Virginia has the confidence of the financial credit wavered or the integrity of the State been shaken. The Legislature has substituted no other law for the Funding act, nor does it propose to pass any such law, and, in view of this, its action smacks yety much of repudation. ing that the people will sustain them in opposing

STRAYING AWAY AND DEATH. Nearly two weeks ago James Dowd, a man seventyfive years of age, partially demented, strayed away from his home in Metrose, Westchester county, and his friends searched in vain for him till Saturda last, when he was found in the Tombs. Mr. Dowd, it appears, was discovered wandering in an abstracted state of mind through the streets of the Twelfth ward and taken to the Hartem Police Court, where the magistrate committed him to the Tomba, as he seemed to have no home or means of support, and cound give no satisfactory account of himself. He had an injury of the right arm, which presented the appearance of being frost-bitten, and the wound subsequently became dangerous. In this condition Mr. Dowd was carried to the residence of his daughter, 613 East Fourteenth street, and thence to Believue Hospital on Saturday last, where death subsequently ensued. In his substracted state of mind he made an incoherent remark about having been beaten, but his friends seemed to attach no importance to it. Coroner Young will make an investigation, after which the remains will be removed to Westchester county for interment. Mr. Dowd was a native of Ireland. last, when he was found in the Tombs. Mr. Dowd,

THE HOMICIDE ON SHIPBOARD.

On Thursday Coroner Keenan will take up the investigation in the case of Samuel Hassen, the sailor who was fatally stabbed on board the schooner Julia E. Gamage, foot of Twenty-fourth street, North River, by William H. Harris, mate of the vessel, full particulars of which have heretofore appeared in the Herald. Wooster Beach, M. D.: to-day will make a post-mortem examination on the body.

GEORGE HUDSON, THE RAILWAY KING.

[From the London Times, Dec. 16.] We have to record to-day the death of one whose name has been long used to point the moral of vaulting ambition and unstable fortune. A new generation has arisen since George Hudson was the Railway King. Those to whom his face and figure and voice, were familiar, who added to the crush at his entertainments, and listened to or retalled the anecdotes respecting him, are to be found only among the middle-aged members of the House of Commons or the most seasoned frequenters of Lon-don society. There was a time when not to know him was to argue one's self unknown; now he is only a tradition. It often happens that a man who has been famous in the past emerges from a long obscurity in the newspaper paragraph which announces his death. The first impulse is to exciaim, "Has he really been alive all this time?" Some such thought will occur to many who remember the George Hudson of the old times, what he did and what was done for him, his wealth, his grandeur and his fall. His social preceded his political disappearance. He was member for Sunderland for years after he ceased to be the Railway King, the arbiter of capitalists and the companion of the great. His power culminated at the time of the railway mania in 1845-8. He was dethroned, like so many other sovereigns, in the revolutionary period which began with 1844. His wealth, enormously exaggerated by report, has passed away, and a short time since a subscription was raised to buy an annuity for him. The judgment of the world on his moral conduct was such that his social and financial influence passed away also. Had it not been so he might have made another fortine. To the last he was energetic and enterprising, even to audacity. To the last no scheme would have deterted him by its difficulty, no speculation by its danger. But after his great fall he was obliged to content himself with an obscure and limited field. At one time he was a good deal abroad and was understood to be concerned in Continental enterprises. From the sequel we must assume that so far as he was concerned they were unsuccessful. The first tidelin his affairs led on to fortune, but he was afterwards stranded, and neither he nor his soliemes could float. A quarter of a certury ago he turned all that he touched to gold; in after years his name was enough to wither the prospectus on which it was printed. The world which bindly trusted him, when cringed to him and fattered him, avenged itself by excessive and savage reprobation. It auger and contempt were increased by the discovery that he had really nothing left. "See how ill-gotten gains vanish!" exclaimed these moralists after the events. Had he managed to keep one or two nundred thousand pounds he would not h obscurity in the newspaper paragraph which announces his death. The first impulse is to exciaim, been so guilty. What a man can hood the world assource that he has a right to hold. Besides, his credit as a successful man would then have stood its ground, and success covers a munitude of sins. It would be ridiculous to apologize for him and to deny his faults merely because he is dead; but it is fair to notice that to the last he had warm ritends,

and that these were among the men who knew him
longest and best.

The history of the railway enterprise in England is a strange one. This country has the honor of giving burth to that famous invention which has revolutionized the nabits of men and the relations of kingdoms to have the strength of the country of the when George Stephenson's locomotive care on upon rais with passengers behind it. Yet for many years this great discovery was but little applied in the country which produced it. In the United States
it was seized upon at once, and in a rough way
the Americans intersected all the Northeastern States with railways. Here there was a tremendous conservative induces against it. England was too beautiful agountry to be cut up by iron abominations. Railways would ruin the coaching interest, annihilate our unrivalled breed of horses, put an end to hunting and other country sports, produce a domocratic mixture of classes, poison the air and dostroy vegetation by the noxious effluvia of the
was enormously compensated for the land taken,
and then his scruples vanished wonderfuly, our sents of learning and chief schoois protested energetically against the sacritege of bringing a railway within miles of them. The consequence was that for ten years after the principle was scientifically demonstrated the advance made was small; some main hies were authorized, but beyond this all was tumid, tentative and recole. It is a characteristic of the English people that, though they are slow to actopy to the age and return of the produce of rerepresentative and recole. It is a characteristic of the English people that, though they are and the control of the property of the control of the control of the property of the property of the property of the proceedings, and travelled during a part of its journey at the rate of seventy-five miles an hour. The events that produced his decine and fail are too well known. His own private affairs were found to be inextricably involved with those of the companies which he ruled, and legal proceedings, which endured for years, overthrew his credit and despoiled him of his wealth.

MONEY STRINGENT.
The money market opened at 7 per cent, gold, as the general rate on call among the stock houses, with considerable dealings at 7, currency, among the government dealers, but as the afternoon advanced the demand became exceedingly active, and the arrival of three o'clock betrayed a scarcity almost unequalled in the history of the street. Borrowers in this crisis were compelled to pay, 3 per cent (equivalent to 135 per cent per annum), and a few transactions were reported at 36 per cent. The demand continued number of borrowers had to take their collaterals to bank late this evening and ask a loan of the amount they owed until to-morrow morning, when they would return the loan in greenbacks.

109% on purchases to cover the contracts of two proxers who had been "short" of the market and were compelled to suspend. The Treasury programme and the Herald's letter giving Secretary Fish's views of the Spanish question helped the rise. Late in the day the market broke down with the heaviness of cash gold and the anticipation of very dear carrying rates to-morrow. The course of the fluctuations to-day is shown in the table:-

 GOVERNMENTS STRONG.

The government list was strong on the demand for the reinvestment of coupons, but in some issues fell off a shade at the close on account of the stringency in money. SOUTHERN SECURITIES STRONG. The Southern list was strong, in sympathy with a sharp rise in the Virginias and South Carolinas. The Governor of Virginia has vetoed the bill to stop funding, while in the case of the South Carolinas it is asserted that the debt statement includes bonds belonging to the Treasury which have been hypothecated for 15c. a 20c. on the dollar. The following were the closing prices:-Tennessee, ex coupon, 63% a 64; do., new, 63% a 64; Virginia,

The stringency in money and the rumor of a run on the Third Avenue Savings Bank unsettied calculations toward the close and induced a pressure to sell, which carried prices down quite rapidly, although there was an eventual second rally in some features, such as Wabash, which, in the final dealings on the sidewalk, recovered to the highest point of the day. Hannibal and St. Joseph preferred sold at 68 1/4, Panama at 75, Boston, Hartford and Erie at 314, and Columbus, Unicago and Indiana Central at 20%.

The only change made by His Itoffor was the diamissal of Peter Brennen, the messenger, and the appointment of Patrick Keenan, ex-Deputy Auditor, in his place. The position is worth $1.200 per annum. There has been no change made in the secretaryanin, Mr. A. Angell still continuing to discharge the duties of that place.

Mr. Charles W. Thomas, ex-Deputy County Clerk was sworn in as Deputy County Auditor, and Mr. C. W. Baldwin as chief cierk in said office.

The late Deputy Comptroller, Leech, is to be appointed enter cierk in the Street Commissioners' office. County Judge Moore and District Attorney Winchester Britton also entered upon their official duties.

Smallpox.

There were sevent -six cases of smallpox reported in Brooklyn during the past week. Yesterlay Health Officer Cochran appointed a corps of vaccinating physicians, whose business it is to visit every house in their respective districts and vacci-nate every person who has not yet been vaccinated. The most beneficial and efficacious results will ac-crue from this prompt and timely course of the san-itary aniorities, who hope thus to prevent the further spread of the disease.
